

RON CARTER

Pebble Mill Walkway

Alongside the river Rea, a wooden walkway, leads the way,
Where many actors played their parts, for the sake of their arts,
Now that's all gone, the only theatre is for teeth.
Wildlife here is at play, while little Egrets look for prey
As I tread the boards on this sunny day, along my way
I reach the tranquil gardens made of silent stones
No rushing water here to moan, a zen like river of old bones
Now with the fading light, to my great delight
The walkway is illuminated for the night.

One a busy BBC studio, now a Dental Hospital.
Walking in the footsteps of the Archers
And many TV series, from Dr Who to Poldark
Now a serene manicured walkway leading to a
Zen style garden made of a stone river and flowers.

© Ron Carter

31st January 2023